

NEW EXPORT SALES MANAGER

Ocean Safety's growth in the Export market, has resulted in expansion of their export operations with Andy Bracewell joining the team as Export Sales Manager.

Based from HQ in Southampton, Andy is responsible for developing new markets and products, at the same time increasing levels of support to existing distributors in the commercial and leisure markets.

Originally from an engineering background, Andy joined Marlow Ropes as UK Sales Manager responsible for ship owners and management companies, as well as Port Authorities, Cruise Companies, Offshore Tug and Bulk Carriers. With this experience and background, Andy is well suited to providing technical and product advice to these market sectors.

Following his role at Marlow, Andy went to work with Land and Marine Products, looking after sales and individual projects worldwide. While at LMP, he offered technical advice and support and provided water-based demonstrations of man overboard recovery systems to navies worldwide, Port Authorities, Tug Companies and Rescue Services. He was also responsible for distributor training and providing servicing centres with technical support.
