

OCEAN SAFETY EXPANDS INTO THE SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE

OCEAN SAFETY, one of the World's leading marine safety equipment suppliers, has just appointed Safety at Sea in Auckland, New Zealand as a distributor and service outlet.

Safety at Sea is already a leading marine safety sales and service company, based in Auckland, and now offers a complete specialist service in one of the largest yachting centres in the World. Greg White, Safety at Sea's Senior Service Engineer, has already completed the rigorous training for servicing the Ocean Safety product range, and the outlet already holds Maritime New Zealand approval.

Jonathan Gravit, Managing Director of Safety at Sea commented, "We are very pleased to be able to offer the Ocean Safety range of products and Kru range of lifejackets in New Zealand. Ocean Safety lead the way in marine safety and it is great that we can now offer quality safety products to our discerning market."

Charlie Mill of Ocean Safety, said, "We are delighted to have Safety at Sea as our distributor in New Zealand to provide for the many enquiries we have received in recent months. Jonathan is ideal for this market, having competed in many thousands of miles of offshore racing, including the Fastnet and the Sydney Hobart races. We welcome his extensive expertise and look forward to a long and prosperous working relationship."
